

The Most Comprehensive International Contemporary Art Show in America

LA Art Show News

Previewing LA Art Show 2025 with Abend Gallery, Copro Gallery and J&J Art, Inc.

We hope that your summer is off to a great start. At the LA Art Show, we are prepping for our 30th anniversary edition, scheduled for February 19-23, 2025, at the Los Angeles Convention Center. Throughout the summer, our team, led by producer and director Kassandra Voyagis, will be carefully curating a diverse selection of international galleries.

In this month's newsletter, we spotlight three galleries that have previously participated in the LA Art Show and have confirmed their return for 2025: Abend Gallery from Denver, Copro Gallery and J&J Art, Inc, both from Los Angeles.

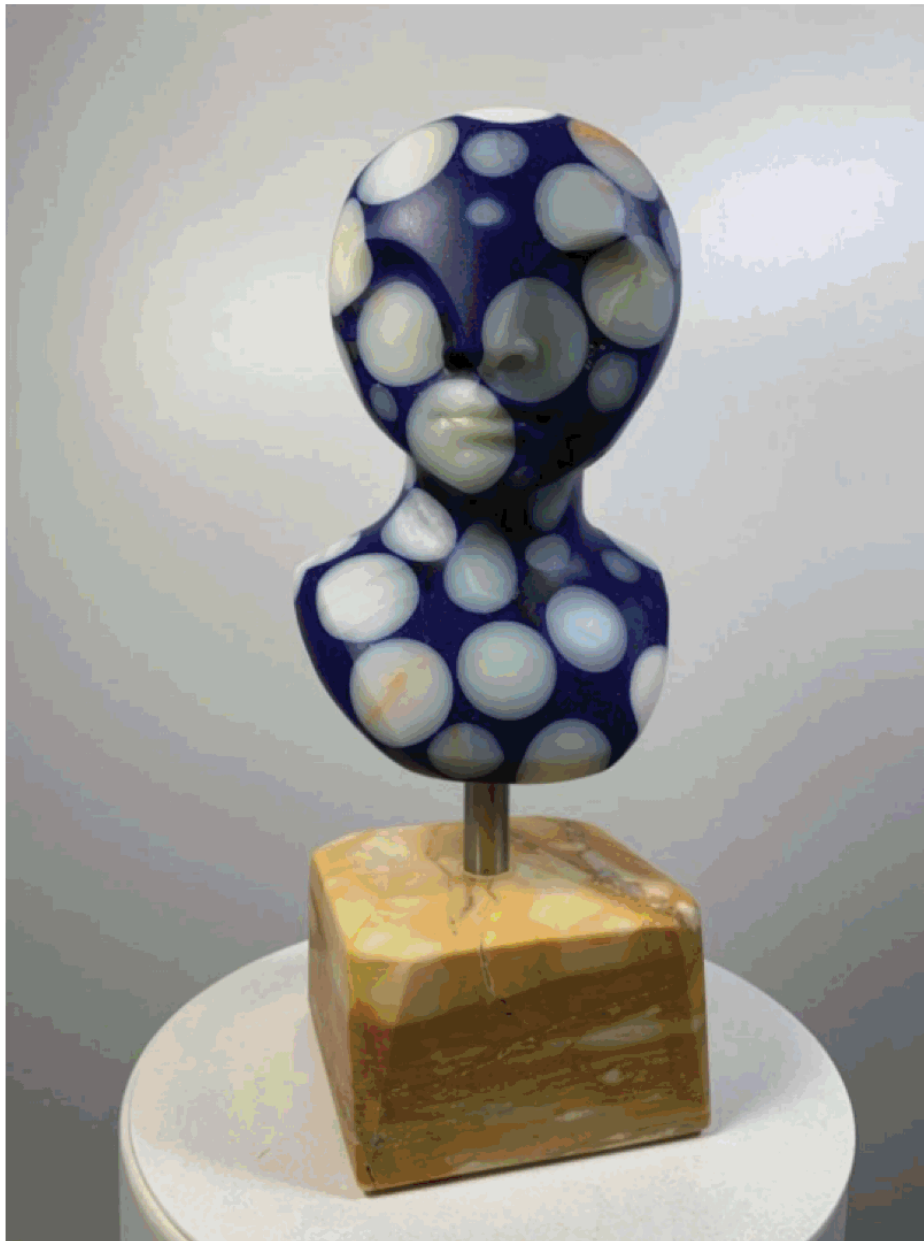

As we work our way up to the LA Art Show's 30th anniversary, we look forward to continuing our collaborations with these galleries and welcoming new exhibitors from around the world.

Gallery Highlights

Abend Gallery

Abend Gallery, located in Denver's Golden Triangle Museum District, presents the finest in contemporary and traditional representation, with concentrations in contemporary depictions of the figure and accomplished traditional landscape works. The artists shown range from local to national and international. Sharing a space with Gallery 1261, Abend Gallery offers visitors a diverse range of art and personalized consultation services to help collectors find the perfect piece for their space.

With over three decades of experience, Abend Gallery has established itself as a key player in Denver's art scene. By continually showcasing a mix of emerging and established artists, the gallery maintains its position as a leading contemporary art venue in the region.

Copro Gallery

Copro Gallery, located at Bergamot Station in Santa Monica, has been showcasing emerging and established artists since its founding in 1992 by Joe Copro, Greg Escalante, and Douglas Nason. The gallery is dedicated to curating exhibitions featuring emerging artists and publishing high-quality limited edition prints. In 1994, owner Greg Escalante co-founded Juxtapoz magazine, allowing the gallery to collaborate with the publication to curate, publicize, and sponsor events both within the gallery and beyond, further promoting the artists they represent.

Since establishing a permanent location, Copro Gallery has continued to focus on museum-quality installations featuring emerging artists while also exhibiting works by established and master painters.

J&J Art Inc.

J&J Art Inc., founded in 2018, is dedicated to promoting contemporary art through a diverse range of works, from contemporary figurative art to pure abstract art. The gallery is driving the promotion of new and emerging artists from South Korea, providing them with opportunities to exhibit their work in various venues.

The gallery consistently introduces a wide variety of artworks from both Korean and American artists, striving to expand the possibilities of Korean art through participation in numerous art fairs.
