Gallery Highlights

For the LA Art Show's 2023 edition, we look forward to special presentations by Asian galleries, including METAU Art and Taguchi Fine Art.

METAU Art

METAU Art is a new online gallery formed in 2021 as a response to Metaverse trends and the changing role of galleries in a post pandemic era. METAU ART focuses on introducing emerging and established Asian artists to the global art scene. For our upcoming show, the gallery will present work by two artists: Trinley Dechen, a Tibetan artist whose work reflects his Himalayan home, and Gao Hong, an established Chinese painter who uses traditional Chinese media combined with modern technique.

Trinley Dechen

Primarily oil paintings, Dechen's artworks combine Expressionist style with a bright Tibet palette and strong contrast. The artist's distinctive style makes his work stand out from traditional Tibet paintings.

Gao Hong

Venturing away from his background in oil painting, Hong began experimenting with ink on Xuan paper in 2006. Adapting his knowledge from working with oils, Hong's ink painting conforms to neither traditional Chinese ink painting nor traditional oil painting. He has developed his own approach rooted in expressive oil painting, with powerful brushstrokes using the more fluid material – ink.

Taguchi Fine Art

Based in Tokyo, Taguchi Fine Art represents international contemporary artists, primarily from Asia and Europe. For its upcoming LA Art Show exhibition, the gallery will be showcasing German artist, Regine Schumann, whose work explores the relationship between color, light, form and space.

Schumann uses industrially produced acrylic materials, almost fluorescent acrylic glass sheets, that come alive and turn into luminous light objects under black light. While referencing minimalism and concrete art, the artist's use of light creates dramatic color shifts with atmospherically charged oscillations that project through the gallery. The chameleon-like transformations of her light objects, perceptible in different light moods as daylight, artificial light or black light, produce an evolving visual experience.
