Former St. Jude Patient Draws Inspiration from Art

We’re delighted that St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital® returns as a charity partner for the 25th anniversary of the LA Art Show and we’re always happy to share inspiring stories about the patients of St. Jude. This story is particularly meaningful to art lovers because of its connection to art.

When Kris Keys was seven years old, she was diagnosed with a rare blood disorder and was treated at St. Jude. When the young patient had to have a blood transfusion, the nurses at St. Jude distracted her with art to take her mind off the needles. Inspired by her early encounter with art-making, Keys went on to study fashion design and now has a career in fashion illustration. When she wanted to tie her life story to fashion, her doctor at St. Jude gave her slides of her own blood cells – which led to a womenswear collection called Hematology. Key’s Red Cell and Jaundice travel scarves feature her dreamy haunting prints, and preserve a lasting legacy of how her blood inspired her art. Read more about Kris’ story by visiting St. Jude Inspire.

Support the life-saving mission of St. Jude by purchasing a Patron Ticket. 100% of the proceeds from the sale of each Patron Ticket benefits St. Jude.

Come to the LA Art Show... Stay for Frieze!

Throwback to 2011

As we gear up for our 25th anniversary celebration, we look back at the 2011 LA Art Show, when we hosted 108 galleries with 23 participating museums/arts organizations. That year, actor David Arquette was the celebrity host for our Opening Night Premiere Party. We were pleased to welcome galleries from 20 countries including China, Korea, Taiwan, Venezuela, Cuba, Spain, The Netherlands and the United Kingdom. Internationally acclaimed cutting-edge artists Feng Feng, Liu Qing-Yuan, and Qin Jin were featured in the special exhibit “China Today” in partnership with 53 Art Museum in Guangzhou, China.
